In the heart of the Chianti area, just a few kilometers from Florence is the Renaissance "Villa Il Poggiale", classified as a historical home, entirely restored by its owners with the aim of offering the hospitality and atmosphere of a patrician family country house. The façade dates back to the 16th century with its lovely Renaissance loggia enriched of columns in Tuscan style, while the elegant frames of the windows and doors are in the typical Florentine "pietra serena". The central courtyard with its well is probably the oldest part of the house. The interiors were designed in the 1800's with beautiful frescoes and painted doors.
